Seen & Heard Around Murray

Gaylen Trevathan tells us that we banged the eggs together too hard. Bang them lightly, he says.

Our rose bush we set out is blooming like crazy.

Regal Lilies looking real regal.

Summer Poinsettia looking real Poinsettish.

Ronnie King who graduated this spring from Murray High School has signed a contract in professional baseball with the Seattle Pilots. A spokesman for the graduating seniors at Murray High called this morning to say that the graduating class of 1969 wishes Ronnie a lot of luck as he leaves tomorrow for training camp. "MRS says Go No-Go."

Ronnie is the son of Ross King of 200 Broach Street. Good going Ronnie.

The Ledger and Times observed their twenty-second anniversary as a daily newspaper on Monday, June 16. It was on June 16, 1947 that we changed from weekly to daily publication.

In observance of the occasion we had a dinner here at the office. Wiley Trenholm cooked.

Homecoming Is Planned At West Fork On Sunday

The West Fork Baptist Church will have its homecoming on Sunday, June 22. The church is located west of Stella on Kentucky Highway 121.

Rev. Heyward Roberts, pastor of the church, will preach at the morning services at eleven o'clock.

A basket dinner will be served at noon and singing will be held in the afternoon. All members, former members, and friends are urged to attend this homecoming at West Fork.

Reds Display 'Monstrous Attitude' At Peace Talks

By PAUL TREUTHARDT
PARIS (UPI) — A U.S. official at the Vietnam talks said today the Communists have displayed a "monstrous attitude" in steadfastly refusing to enter into serious negotiations with the Allies.

At the same time, the official, who asked not to be identified, played down reports of minor differences between officials of South Vietnam and American negotiators over American support of the Saigon government.

He said the refusal of the Communists to negotiate with Saigon and their "heavyhanded attempts" to overthrow the Saigon government are the main obstacles to progress towards peace.

The official said the offer by President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam for direct talks with the National Liberation Front (NLF), the political arm of the Communists, was rejected.

Survivors are one son, Dr. Melvin B. Henley, 104 South 9th Street, Murray; four sisters, Mrs. Claude Garner and Mrs. Ethel Insko of Martin, Tenn.; Mrs. Gollie Dunn of St. Louis, Mo.; and Mrs. Virgie Rye of Dresden, Tenn.; five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at two p. m. at the chapel of the Max H. Churchill Funeral Home with Rev. Johnson Easley officiating.

Interment will be in the South Pleasant Grove Cemetery with the arrangements by the Max H. Churchill Funeral Home where friends may call.

The Robert W. Hule Memorial Fountain located on the Murray Water and Sewer System ground on the corner of North Fourth and Olive is nearing completion.

The fountain is composed of two elevated ringed sprays which will overflow into a central pool which will also contain a water display.

The granite clad fountain, blending with the system's building construction materials, will incorporate brick in the walkway approach and visitor's seating. Landscaping will include spring flowers and shrubs.

Air Pollution Board Moves
Toward Stopgap Regulations

By LIVINGSTON TAYLOR
FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — The state Air Pollution Control Commission moved Tuesday toward adoption of a stop gap regulation which would require air pollutant sources to obtain annual permits.

However, the commission returned again to committee two regulations which would set specific limits on the amounts of particulate matter, dust, and grime to be emitted.

The commission voted to hold a public hearing during the week of Aug. 11 on the proposed regulations.

As now written the regulation would:

—Effective Jan. 1, 1970, require most potential pollution sources to obtain an annual permit from the commission.

—Exempt backyard incinerators, tobacco beds, residential furnaces and boilers in buildings of six units or less, automobiles, buses and trains.

—Require the applicant to list "an analysis of the characteristics, properties and volume of the contemplated emission."

—Require the applicant to list "an analysis of the characteristics, properties and volume of the contemplated emission."

—Require the applicant to list "an analysis of the characteristics, properties and volume of the contemplated emission."

—Require the applicant to list "an analysis of the characteristics, properties and volume of the contemplated emission."

One Person
Injured Last Night Here

Donald Shelton Steffey of 736 Nash Drive was injured in a motorcycle and car accident last night at 8:24 on Sycamore Street, according to the report filed by the investigating officers of the Murray Police Department.

Steffey, age 23, suffered a broken humerus, upper part of the arm, in the accident. He was admitted to the Murray-Calloway County Hospital and is listed in fair condition this morning by the officials there.

Police said Steffey was driving a 1967 Honda Motorcycle and hit the 1966 Buick two door hardtop driven by Nellie Robene Lassiter of 627 Broad Street, Murray, as they were both going east on Sycamore Street. Mrs. Lassiter was slowing for traffic in front of her when Steffey collided with the rear end of her car, according to the police report.

Damage to the Lassiter car was on the rear end and to the Steffey motorcycle on the front end.

Allotment May Be Set For '70 Crop

A new farm wheat allotment may be established for 1970 crop wheat for farms that did not have a 1969 allotment, and which can meet all eligibility requirements. Mr. Ollie C. Hall of the Calloway County ASC Committee announced today.

A 1970 wheat allotment will automatically be established for all farms that had a wheat allotment established for 1969.

To be eligible for a new farm allotment, the operator must expect to receive 50 percent, or more, of his income from the production of agricultural commodities on the farm; neither the owner nor the operator may have an interest in any other farm which has a 1970 wheat allotment; and the person making application must have had at least two years experience in the last five years in producing wheat.

Applications for a new farm allotment must be filed in the county office on or before June 30, 1969. Any interested producer who can meet these requirements should contact the county office before the final date for filing an application.

Mobile was the first city in Alabama to have a telephone exchange.

Eighteenth Century U.S. Scenes Saved in Prints, Thanks to Currier & Ives

A Currier & Ives print depicting a farm life winter scene.

By GROVER BRINKMAN

Written Especially for Central Press and This Newspaper
WHEN AN OLD dwelling was torn down recently in an Illinois town, an artist who chanced by the site was dismayed to find the floor littered with old lithographs, trampled, dirty and soiled, all of them beyond repair.

Many of the old lithos, of course, were worthless. But two of them were Currier & Ives prints, trampled into the mud because the wreckers didn't realize their value.

The Currier & Ives story is an amazing saga of a new art form in America that had its birth early in the 1800s. It started when a creative young man named Nathaniel Currier, aged 15, decided that he would be a lithographer.

Many of the old lithos, of course, were worthless. But two of them were Currier & Ives prints, trampled into the mud because the wreckers didn't realize their value.

Stone lithography had just been started in America by a firm called Pendleton's, in Boston. It was from this firm that young Nathaniel Currier, only 15, received his first job as an apprentice. Five years later he had so mastered the art that he set out on his own, first in Philadelphia, then New York.

In 1835, Nathaniel Currier, still little more than a youth, created the first renowned for himself by portraying scenes of the great New York fire of that year. Five years later, he acquired national renown as a result of his famous depiction of the burning of the steamboat Lexington in Long Island Sound. In conjunction with the New York Sun, a special edition contained a colored lithograph of the print in the (then) unbelievable time of three days.

SO spectacular was the efficacy of this method of reporting a great piece of news that from every corner of the country came demands for copies. For days, even Currier himself found it necessary to pitch in and aid in the shipping of the papers containing the print.

During the next 10 years, the fame of Currier's colored lithographs became world wide. They were sold as newspapers and by street corner vendors, as well as in large quantities in local stores, and by house-to-house agents.

And the price still goes up! racose, For flea beetles, DDT dust gives very good results. An application a few days ahead of setting controls the insects for a period usually up to two weeks in the field.

Best spacing of burley tobacco is 16-18 inches in rows 40-42 inches apart. Best dark tobacco spacing seems to be rows 40 inches apart and plants 34-38 inches apart in the row. Transplanting is best done when temperature is below 90 degrees F.

Herbicides recommended for grass and most broad leaf weeds are vernam, enide, and balan on trial basis. The manufacturer's recommendations for use should be followed or obtain the Extension recommendations at your local office.

Every year some growers have surplus plants, while others have shortage or failure. Growers having surplus plants (not placed) are encouraged to report the following information to their local Extension office: name, phone number, location, kind of tobacco, and square yards of plant bed or estimate number of plants. Growers needing plants should contact their local Extension office for referral.

The 1969 Extension recommendations for soil insects are diazinon applied in either liquid or granular form, Di-syston, a systemic, used at the rate of 40 pounds of 10 percent granules is recommended for flea beetle control and may control aphids. Users are cautioned to follow instructions when using di-syston to avoid injury to themselves.

Tobacco beds should be observed for diseases and insects up to transplanting. Anthracnose is the most common disease and is best controlled by spraying with polyram, one ounce in three gallons of water. Ferbam is also recommended for anti-

Guidance Conference Set, Western

Bowling Green, Ky., Western Kentucky University will host its first annual Summer Conference for School Guidance Personnel June 23-24.

The Conference is designed to facilitate communication and working relationships among people engaged in guidance and personnel services.

The idea was born when Western officials reflected on the national emphasis placed on guidance, counseling and personnel services since sponsorship under the National Defense Education Act of 1958, the Elementary and Secondary Act of 1965, and the impending vocational guidance implications of the Vocational Education Amendments of 1968.

The Conference program will consist of four general sessions involving more than 50 presenters, discussants and recorders. They will participate in a symposium, roundtable discussions, and meetings of professional interest groups.

Dr. Paul W. Fitzgerald, State Director of Pupil Personnel Services for the state of Florida, will deliver two major addresses about relevant approaches to pupil personnel programs in today's schools.

Ben X. Freeman, Director of Pupil Personnel Services for Louisville City Schools, and Dr. Newman-Walker, Superintendent of Paducah City Schools (recently appointed Superintendent of Louisville City Schools), will talk from the schools' point of view.

Dr. Stanley Brumfield, Western's Director of Counseling Services, will talk about work with college student personnel and Dr. Kearney Campbell, Kentucky State Director of Guidance, will describe guidance and personnel services at the state level.

The Conference is sponsored by Western's Office of Counselor Education (Dr. Emmett Burken, Director) and the University's College of Education (Dr. Tate C. Page, Dean).

Further information can be obtained from the University's Public Affairs Office and the Office of Counselor Education.

NEW YORK UPI — Although some of the currently leading stocks in the market may require two to three more weeks of consolidation, a good number of them have moved down to strong levels and seem capable of holding the line, says Tessel, Paturick & Ostrau.

In the present oversold market, traders should be "on the alert" for the first signs of stability which would indicate a reversal of the downtrend," the firm observes.

The Janeway Service believes

With respect to the intermediate term, the only major bullish factor ahead for the market is the possibility that during the next 12 months some real progress will be made in the Paris peace negotiations, says Shearson, Hamill & Co. The firm feels this possibility "is real enough, to warrant commitments in carefully selected common stocks."

NEW YORK UPI — People have Joe Namath all wrong. They say his head is too big. That's not so at all. It's not his head that's too big, it's his heart. Joe Namath has a heart as big as a bathtub and the trouble is he lets all his friends use it. He thinks that's being loyal.

He has another habit involving his heart. Confronted with a sticky problem occasionally, he'll use it instead of his head to think with and that's one of the reasons he's in this pickle now.

He did get in one shot that hit squarely in the middle of the target when he announced he was quitting football 12 days ago. "This is ridiculous," he said. Joe Namath never spoke any truer words.

It sure is ridiculous. The whole thing is so ridiculous it goes beyond being absurd and the sad part about the entire mess is that Joe Namath, with that genuinely warm, big heart must shoulder the responsibility for what happened either now or eventually whether he's completely blameless or not.

Like all other mortals, 26-year-old Joe Namath will find life can be hard, life can be cruel. He probably has found that out already.

Football Hero

Nothing in the world could have possibly been sweeter than it was for him after he guided the Jets to their astonishing Super Bowl victory over the Baltimore Colts five months ago. In three hours, Joe Namath became almost as colossal a national hero as Charles A. Lindbergh talked about the remarkable thing Joe Namath did in the Super Bowl. Grown men pictured themselves as him; young girls pictured themselves with him.

Now the shoe is on the other foot. This time the referee totaled up all the points and declared Joe Namath the loser. Namath says it's an unfair decision because he never had anything to do with the unwholesome element which frequented his bar and restaurant, Bachelors III.

Namath's first impulse was right. He had made up his mind to sell his place after he had been warned to disown it by Pete Rozelle, the football commissioner, but then his heart got in the way again, he thought about all his friends and listened to them and changed his mind. He claims it's a matter of "principle" now.

Does Joe Namath mean only his principle and who cares about anybody else's? That's how most wars are started and the way things are going now wars may be going out of style.

The argument is advanced that some of the football owners themselves aren't as "clean" as Joe Namath. Maybe yes and maybe no. It doesn't really matter. The point is that Joe Namath has to be cleaner and bigger than anybody else because that's what he's always said. If you think the advertisement was a fraud then you're saying the same thing about Joe Namath and you're in a worse fix than you were before.

Joe didn't object to all the praise and adulation which came his way after the Super Bowl so what kind of a super hero will he be?

look like if he objects to some censure now, yes, even if it isn't all his fault.

One attorney, who also has served as a judge on the bench, tells me Namath is 100 per cent correct, according to his last stated position.

"Legally," he adds, "not morally."

I also spoke to one of the most prominent athletes in the country about the Namath situation. He's a fan of Namath's, but prefers not to be identified. He says:

"The thing that has made Joe Namath is football, and it also supplied him with the money to buy his bar. The game doesn't owe him anything. It's the other way around. Joe owes football something. He owes something to the kids, too, because they all look up to him. I believe he's completely innocent but he has to go out and prove it now. He can't just quit and leave the whole thing open to speculation."

Think It Over

Namath is a unique individual who does some unique things. I don't think he's that unique that he can't see this grotesque situation in proper perspective once he sits down and thinks it all over. I know he has done that but he has to do it again, and maybe once more after that. By himself, too. That's important. If too many others are around Joe gets heart trouble.

One rumor floating around is that he may leave the country and play all his football in Canada. I'll believe that the same time Cassius Clay has all those little fights in Egypt.

Closer to the solution undoubtedly is the session Namath had with Phil Iselein, the Jets' President, Tuesday. The one-hour session meeting saved the way for another one soon with Rozelle.

I think Namath will stay "retired" a little longer, swallow his pride, and come back. Only after a rough struggle with himself. But if Joe Namath is half the man I think he is, he'll pick himself up, ask for the "bill" and pay the whole tab.

He always has before. That's why he's so big on principle.

Namath Plans To Meet With Rozelle

NEW YORK UPI — Retired New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath, who insisted he will not allow pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle to run his off-the-field activities, has agreed to confront Rozelle personally, probably sometime next week.

Namath, making his first personal contact with the club officials since his announced retirement June 6, met with Jets President Phil Iselein Tuesday in an attempt to set up the meeting with Rozelle.

Namath has denied any knowledge of alleged gambling activity at his New York City nightclub, but Sunday he hired a private detective to keep out undesirable.

Rozelle's office reported Monday that hiring the detective did not change Namath's status and said Namath would have to meet personally with the commissioner on the matter.

American League

The Detroit Tigers are making their move now but they've found themselves on a treadmill.

The defending world champions — breaking out of an early season slump swept a doubleheader from the New York Yankees, 8-0 and 6-3 Tuesday night to run their winning streak to seven games as manager Mayo Smith beamed, "I feel the club has momentum now."

But the problem for the Tigers is that they're still not gaining on the high-flying Baltimore Orioles, who've won six of seven. On Monday night, Smith said, "Baltimore can't keep up that .721 pace." He was right. On Tuesday night, the Orioles beat Washington, 5-1, to boost their percentage to .726. Baltimore leads the second-place Boston Red Sox by seven games and the Tigers by 8 1/2.

A pair of Detroit newcomers, Ikon Tresh Brown, and a relief pitcher who rarely starts, John Hiller, were key players in the Tiger sweep.

Collects Two Hits

Tresh, picked up this week from the Yankees, started in the first game and collected two hits and scored two runs as Hiller pitched a six-hitter to even his record at 2-2. Till Freeman and Mickey Stanley also homered as the Tigers beat Mel Stottlemyre, now 9-6.

In the second game, Brown, just called up from Toledo of the International League collected two hits and scored two runs. His first major league hit in the fourth was a two-run homer. World Series hero Mickey Lolich went 7 2-3 innings to boost his record to 7-1. Don McMahon finished up the final 1-3 innings after the Yanks touched Lolich for three runs when he was coasting with a 60 margin.

In other American League action, Cleveland beat Boston, 4-2 and California drubbed Minnesota 13-1. The Seattle at Chicago doubleheader and the Oakland at Kansas City games were rained out.

Mike Cuellar pitched a four-hitter and Dave Johnson drove in two runs with a single and a homer as the Orioles beat Washington, Baltimore has now won 11 of its last 13 and eight straight on the road. Cuellar pitched a no-hitter for a 5-1-3 innings before Frank Howard doubled. Hank Allen ruined Cuellar's shut-out bid with a run-scoring double in the eighth.

Ken Harrelson snapped a 2-2 deadlock with a single in the eighth and scored on Cap Peterson's sacrifice fly as Cleveland topped Boston for the first time in eight games since last Aug. 22. Stan Williams pitched a six-hitter to gain the victory for the Indians while Jim Lonborg suffered the loss.

Homers by Rick Reichardt and Bill Voss and triples by Jim Spencer and Aurelio Rodriguez highlighted a 12-hit attack. California romped over Minnesota - Andy Messersmith pitched a three-hitter to gain his second victory of the year. A three-run homer by Voss highlighted a three-run sixth inning that wrapped up the game for the Orioles.

National League

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

Richie Hebner and Larry Hise, two of the National League's most promising young starters, continue to demonstrate why they may be the superstars of the future.

Hebner, a 20-year-old third baseman who passed up a number of inviting pro hockey offers to sign with Pittsburgh, singled in the decisive run in each game as the Pirates swept the Chicago Cubs Tuesday night, 1-0 and 4-3.

Hise, 22, drove in four runs with a pair of homers and a single to give Philadelphia a 7-3 victory over New York after the Mets had won the opener of the doubleheader, 1-0 behind Gary Gentry's two-hit pitching. Elsewhere, San Francisco blanked Cincinnati 4-0, Los Angeles walloped San Diego twice, 7-3 and 11-0, St. Louis downed Montreal, 2-0, and Atlanta shaded Houston, 6-5.

Wins First Game

Hebner won the first game with a run-scoring single in the seventh inning before deciding the second in the ninth with a bases loaded single.

Matty Alou doubled in the seventh inning of the opener and scored on Hebner's single off Ferguson Jenkins. The Pirates loaded the bases in the ninth inning of the second game on a single, an error and an intentional walk before Hebner lined his single into outfield with one out.

Juan Marichal pitched a five-hitter in beating Cincinnati for the ninth consecutive time and Ron Hunt and Dick Dietz drove in two runs each as the Giants downed the Reds. Marichal, now 8-2, has not lost to the Reds since September, 1965.

Dietz walked with the bases filled in the first to force in a run and Hunt had a two-run double in the fourth. Dietz doubled home Dave Marshall in the seventh.

Dodgers Take Doubleheader

The Dodgers parlayed a seven-run seventh inning in the opener with a six-run outburst in the fourth inning of the nightcap to clip the Padres twice, Andy Kosco's two-run homer, his 12th of the season, highlighted the seven-run inning in the opener and Willie Crawford's three-run shot capped the second game rally.

Alan Foster, who lost his first four decisions this season, pitched his second consecutive shutout in the second game.

Curt Flood drove in two runs with a seventh-inning double and Steve Carlton and Joe Hoerner combined on a five-hitter to pace the Cardinals over the Expos. Flood, benched for Vic Davalillo at the start of the game, scored Carlton, on with a fielder's choice, and Lou Brock, who singled.

Hank Aaron led off the ninth inning with his 18th homer of the season and 528th of his career to boost the Braves over the Astros. Aaron's homer came off Jack Billingham, the last of five Houston pitchers.

Mike Lum's two-run single highlighted by a five-run seventh-inning rally that gave the Braves a 5-4 lead. Gary Geiger singled in the tying run in the eighth for Houston.

Three Are Named To All-Stars

NEW YORK UPI — Tris Speaker, Rogers Hornsby and Joe Cronin have been elected to all-star teams in two cities in the first stage of the voting to determine the greatest baseball players of all time.

The all-time all-star team, composed of eight players and two pitchers, will be announced July 21 at a dinner in Washington, D. C. The game's "greatest player" and "greatest manager" also will be named in ceremonies commemorating the 100th anniversary of organized baseball.

Speaker was elected to the outfield of the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians. Speaker, who had a .344 lifetime batting average, played for the Red Sox from 1907 through 1915 and for the Indians from 1916 through 1926.

Hornsby, whose .358 lifetime batting average ranks second on the all-time list to Ty Cobb's .367, was elected the second baseman on the all-time teams of the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs.

Cronin, current American League president, was elected the all-star shortstop of the Washington Senators and Red Sox. He played for the Senators from 1928 through 1934 and for the Red Sox from 1935 through 1945.

Active players who were elected as their teams' greatest all-time players were Hank Aaron Braves, Willie Mays Giants, Ernie Banks, Cubs, Brooks Robinson Orioles, Harmon Killebrew, Twins and Jim Fregosi Angels.

Other players voted the best on their teams were Edd Roush Reds, Sandy Koufax Dodgers, Robin Roberts Phillies, Honus Wagner, Pirates, Stan Musial Cardinals, Ted Williams Red Sox, Luke Appling White Sox, Speaker Indians, Cobb Tigers, Walter Johnson, Senators and Babe Ruth Yankees.

REDS RECALL RAMOS

CINCINNATI UPI — Veteran pitcher Pete Ramos was recalled by the Cincinnati Reds from their Indianapolis farm club Tuesday and rookie hurler Jose Pena was sent back to Indianapolis to make room for Ramos.

Dear Abby

He's too old for hide and seek!

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old widow who recently met a very charming and attractive 34-year-old widower. He is a delightful company and we really hit it off together very well, but there is one drawback. He has two married daughters (whom I have never met) who want to run his life. They are so afraid that someone is going to "take Mother's place" they can't stand it. She died three years ago.

When this man takes me out we have to go places where his daughters will not find out about it. Also when he comes to my home he takes a taxi so no one will see his car parked in front of my house.

How can I convince him that he should live his own life and quit worrying about what his daughters think? Or do you think I should insist on meeting his daughters and try to make them like me?

IN DOUBT

DEAR IN: If you can meet his daughters and make them "like" you, it would be ideal. But a grown man who is "hiding" from his daughters in the manner you describe has a lot of growing up to do. I certainly wouldn't hide with him much longer.

DEAR ABBY: Why should the men have all the fun? They seem to enjoy PLAYBOY magazine and their PLAYBOY CLUBS so much. How about women getting the same break?

There are a lot of guys with beautiful bodies who wouldn't mind being photographed for the pleasure of women who can appreciate them.

I think a PLAYGIRL club would do a great business. After all there are more girls than men around, and why shouldn't they be able to go to a club and have good-looking, well-built men waiting on them? It's an idea, Abby. What do you think of it?

PLAYGIRL

DEAR PLAYGIRL: Not much. In the first place there are plenty of muscle men magazines around if a girl wants to get her jollies looking at paper dolls. But what man in his right mind is going to take a girl to a PLAYGIRL club so she can oggle good-looking MEN?

DEAR ABBY: Your article on marijuana was good, but I'll bet the subject of diet (or pep) pills will bring in just as much, if not more comment.

I started taking diet pills (dextrazine) when I was 18. It also helped to keep me awake, which I found helpful as I worked two jobs. Now, 10 years later, I am still taking them—only I am taking five times as much as I did when I started.

I am a married woman with three children and a good husband who knows nothing of my drug dependence—and that is exactly what it is.

I've never had a problem getting the pills. I don't get them illegally. Many of my friends take them, too, and we buy or borrow them from each other. We get them from our doctors on prescription.

I don't know where this is going to end. I smoke two to three packs of cigarettes a day and drink coffee like it was going out of style. My patience is short and I don't really have the energy I once had.

Let me offer one piece of advice to anyone who is about to take his first "pep" pill. DON'T. If you're overweight, DIET, but don't take pills for it. If you're tired, eat nap, but don't take a pill to pep you up. These pills make you smoke, drink, and talk too much. I never realized it, but I took more than I could handle when I took my first one. Don't use my name or city if you print this, and sign me "HOOKED".

DEAR "HOOKED": Thank you for writing. You may have performed a tremendous service for a lot of people you'll never meet.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

North Murray Club Meets In Home Of Mrs. Rema Cole

Ten members and one visitor answered the roll call by naming their favorite magazine at the meeting of the North Murray Homemakers Club held on Friday, June 13 at one-thirty o'clock in the afternoon at the home of Mrs. Rema Cole.

The lesson on "Health Services" was presented by Mrs. Robert Boltz, assisted by Mrs. Bernice Boyd. They said the one overall objective of the health department was to make the county and state a healthier and happier place in which to work and live. The leaders discussed the areas where research work is being done.

Mrs. John Workman, president, presided and Mrs. B. J. Hoffman gave the devotion reading from Psalms 33:1 and closing with prayer.

The family life chairman, Mrs. Charles Crawford, read an article on "Faith In Yourself" and closed by saying "Let your faith show".

Mrs. Bernice Boyd gave the landscape notes and Mrs. Carl Kings who has been away several months was a visitor.

The recreational leader was absent and the members enjoyed viewing the lovely handwork of Mrs. Cole that was on display.

Refreshments were served by the hostess. The next regular meeting will be held on September 12.

Mrs. Earl Lee Is Program Leader At Elm Grove Meeting

Mrs. Earl Lee was in charge of the program on "Churches Ministering in Their Community" at the meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Elm Grove Baptist Church held on Thursday, June 12, at two o'clock in the afternoon at the church.

The meeting was opened with the group singing "Rescue the Perishing" followed by the call to prayer from Psalms 51:13 by Mrs. Charles Burkeen.

Others taking part in the program were Mrs. Bessie Colson, Mrs. George Cossey, Mrs. Thelma Parker, and Maudie Hale. Mrs. T. G. Shelton led in prayer.

The president, Mrs. Burkeen, presided, Mrs. Hilda Maupin, secretary, read the minutes, and Mrs. Harry Shekell gave the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Alvin Futrell led the closing prayer. Mrs. Alfred Keel and Mrs. Walton Fulkerson were also present.

Wilkinson-Howe Engagement

MISS JANICE DENE WILKERSON

(Photo by Love)

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilkerson of 1203 Vine Street, Murray, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Janice Dene, to Edgar L. Howe, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar L. Howe, Sr., Park Lane, Murray.

Miss Wilkerson is a graduate of Murray High School and is now attending Murray State University where she is majoring in elementary education.

The groom-elect is a 1963 graduate of Murray High School and a 1967 graduate of Murray State University. He is now employed by Ernst & Ernst Accounting firm of Hopkinsville.

The wedding will take place on Sunday, August 31, at two-thirty o'clock in the afternoon at the First Baptist Church. All relatives and friends are invited to attend.

Miss Nancy Leah Humphrey Married To Clinton Davis Gray In Church Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Everett Humphrey announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Nancy Leah Humphrey, to Clinton Davis Gray.

Mrs. Gray is the daughter of the late Mrs. Isetta Bennett Humphrey. Mr. Gray is the son of Mrs. R. C. Gray and the late Mr. Gray of Eddyville.

The wedding took place on Tuesday, June 10, at eleven o'clock in the morning in the sanctuary of the Buechel United Methodist Church in Louisville.

Rev. Donnie Crenshaw performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of the immediate families and close friends of the couple. The altar held a centerpiece of white chrysanthemums. Cathedral candles burned on either side.

The bride was escorted by her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a sleeveless street-length dress of white lace featuring an empire waistline and cowl collar. Her elbow length veil of silk illusion was attached to a crescent shaped headpiece of matching lace and pearls. Her colonial bouquet was centered with white sweetheart roses surrounded by white Marguerite daisies and babies breath with white ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Benjamin C. Humphrey was her sister-in-law's matron of honor. She wore a pink linen dress trimmed in matching lace and demi-veil of pink silk illusion. Her colonial bouquet was made of pink rosebuds, pink daisies and ribbon streamers.

Lee Waller served his cousin as best man. Mrs. A. B. Harper, organist, presented a program of nuptial music preceding the ceremony.

Mrs. Gray is a graduate of Caldwell County High School and Murray State University. Her corollary is Alpha Gamma Delta. She is employed as a medical technologist at Norton Memorial Infirmary in Louisville.

Mr. Gray is a graduate of Lyon County High School and he attended Murray State University. He is employed by General Electric in Louisville.

They will reside at 2919 Brinkley Way in Louisville following their wedding trip to the Great Smoky Mountains.

Reception

A wedding buffet followed the ceremony at the church. The bride's table was overlaid with a white net cloth. An arrangement of Marguerite daisies centered the table with burning white tapers on either side. The three-tiered wedding cake was circled with similar and daisies. Silver appointments completed the table.

Mrs. Thomas A. Turner, Murray, poured and Mrs. James H. Shelton, Sr., Murray, served the wedding cake.

Out of town guests included Mrs. R. C. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Compton, Betty and Bill Compton, all of Eddyville, Mrs.

On The Farm Front

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON UPI — A new plan for government purchase of crop production rights on marginal farms could end the nation's farm support headaches permanently, the plan's sponsors claim.

The long-range adjustment plan is now under study by administration officials who favor many of its basic principles. The proposal was outlined in a report now circulating here — that recommends purchase of 20-year cropping "easements" on 353,000 marginal farms including more than 73.5 million acres.

Comparing this program with a possible extension of recent farm support programs, sponsors of the plan said it could save the government $20 billion over 10 years while still pushing 197 net farm income to 10 percent above 1967 levels. At the same time, production controls would be dropped from nearly all farm crops and direct payments would be eventually eliminated for wheat, feed grains and cotton.

Current farm programs have already swallowed about $75 billion in federal costs without solving the farm surplus and income problem, the report said. If the programs are continued, another $35 billion may be spent during the next 10 years — "and the problem would still remain."

Easements Praised

"Enough has already been spent for the nation to have bought its way out of this problem several times over. The easement technique may be the way to finally dispose of the problem and move onto more pressing social and economic issues," the report said.

If operated on a big enough scale, the report said, the plan "could be the terminal program for agriculture" in a transition to a market economy.

Under the easement plan: —Farmers in marginal areas would be invited to sell the government an easement covering rights to produce major crops on their farms for 20 years. The landowners, or any later owners of the farms during the easement period, could not grow any of the specified crops without government permission.

—A farmer selling an easement would be paid over a 10-year period, with a large part of the rice aid during the first few years.

—Easements would be bought first in areas of lowest farm productivity, then in the next lowest areas, until sufficient land had been tied up to leave production on remaining farms in balance with demand at about present price levels.

—Major government price support programs would be continued until the easement program was big enough to keep free-market prices at current levels; then the price supports would be discontinued.

—Land covered by easements could be kept out of all production except for forestry. Or, under one variation of the plan favored by its sponsors, farmers could be allowed to produce beef on half the easement acreage.

—Operations could be modified to limit the amount of land covered in any county or state, although this would increase the cost of the program.

Cost Estimated

The cost of the easement plan might be about $16 billion over its first 10 years, sponsors estimated, or about $18 billion less than estimated costs of continuing present programs. After a decade, the easements would be paid off and would cost taxpayers nothing. Current programs — if extended — would continue to draw about $3.4 billion a year from the treasury.

Income estimates in the report included forecasts that farm income by 1975 would be $17.6 billion if present programs are extended, and about $16.1 billion if the far cheaper easement plan is adopted. Both figures represent increases over the $4.6 billion income level of 1967 and the $14.9 billion predicted for 1969.

The report was shaped by an "Ad Hoc Committee for a Better Agricultural Policy" and edited by one of its members, Walter E. Chryst, an economist at the University of Mississippi.

Other members of the committee, though not identified in its report, were: Earl O. Head, widely known farm economist from the Iowa State University's Center for Agricultural and Economic Development; Roscoe G. Haynie, former president of Wilson & Co., and a member of the National Advisory Commission on Food and Fiber during the Johnson administration; and Leonard Haverkamp, an executive of Wilson & Co.

WASHINGTON UPI — President Nixon says his two days of talks with Colombian President Charles Lleras Restrepo "marked a major step forward in the development of U. S. policies in Latin America." Lleras described the sessions as "very fruitful and complete" and predicted they would lead to "a new era of hemispheric cooperation."

TAKING FRANCE INTO A NEW ERA OF GAULISM—Elected president of France, Georges Pompidou, 57-year-old former schoolteacher, waves from a balcony in Paris. Observers believe France now will head into a new, seven-year era of Gaulism, but with better relations with the United States.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — There can be little doubt that the market is on the defensive and that it probably will take a significant news development to turn the list back to the upside for any meaningful length of time, says E. F. Hutton & Co.

Nevertheless, the firms says a technical rebound seems close at hand. The "domestic monetary air has been at least temporarily cleared by the prime rate increase and breath figures indicate the market is oversold."

Aggressive investment is basically oriented toward companies likely to benefit from major expansion of housing, education and other areas of the civilian economy somewhat neglected during the Vietnam conflict, notes Vanden Broeck, Heber & Co.

Diamond, Turk & Co. believes a technical rally from current levels is likely over the short term. This will provide some opportunities for quick traders, the firm says, but the longer-term investor "would be well advised to turn his attention to the bond market where yields of 8 per cent in quality issues are available."

There is a summer rally in the making, says Scheinman Timing Forecasts, and it may be able to take the market up to all-time highs. Such a rally, the firm says, could be the last chance to get out before a deep and precipitous decline takes place.

Watch It, Hollywood!— Making Monkey Out of Our Correspondent!

By ARMY ARCHERD
Central Press Association
Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—They've done it again—made a monkey out of me once more.

Since I had played a role in the original "Planet of the Apes" and donned the monkey suit for the role, Producer Arthur Jacobs and 20th Century-Fox found it only fitting that I suit up again in the sequel, "Beneath the Planet of the Apes."

No, I don't think anyone believed my walkout was responsible for the tremendous success of the boxoffice bonanza, but in show business who can take a chance—if it worked once, maybe, they must have figured, it could work again.

And so here I was again way out in the Malibu mountains on the 20th Century-Fox ranch set working in "Beneath the Planet of the Apes." The location has also gained some notoriety since last I visited—part of the property now includes land owned by Gov. Ronald Reagan who sold it to the studio.

THIS time, I figured I must have "arrived" in Hollywood as a full-fledged "star"—they gave me the dressing room trailer clearly marked with Charlton Heston's name. (Later, I found out he wasn't working that day). Believe me, one could get accustomed to the life of a star, working in the heat of the San Fernando Valley. Heston's trailer boasted air conditioning, piped-in music and all the comforts of a home bathroom on wheels.

The crew of "Apes" was glad to see me—they, too, must have been as superstitious as the houses, figured my appearance meant another hit film—and more employment for them.

Wardrobe man Carl Garrison greeted me. "Got your suit waiting for you," and cleft-toe boots, purple pants, jumper, heavy leather coat, bullet belt and fur neckpiece (to cover the space under the gorilla face I was soon to receive).

Makeupman Terry Miles checked my face for size, produced one of the incredibly accurate gorilla faces, pliable yet sturdy, complete with teeth, and combed hair.

"CAN you see OK?" he asked. "Breathe?" We answered in the affirmative in both cases, and he removed the appliance and started to paint my face with a black compound so that light spaces around the eyes, nostrils

Army Archerd, in ape costume, interviews director Ted Post. and mouth would not show through my otherwise human skin.

On the set, director Ted Post told me I was to be in a scene practicing bayonet thrusts into a straw dummy representing a captured U.S. astronaut. I already didn't like my role and when the prop man gave me a heavyweighted gun, complete with bayonet, I knew I didn't like it—but this was show biz.

VETERAN stuntman Chuck Roberson showed me how to use the bayonet and to give it plenty of umphhhh. The 6-foot, four-inch Roberson has worked with the biggest of 'em all: John Wayne, the late Clark Gable and Gary Cooper, etc., so I figured he knew what he was doing.

Director Post called for "action" and I went into mine as cameras rolled and a wagon rolled by with captured Jim Franciscus and Linda Harrison. When you see the scene, I'm the first gorilla on the right.

Director Post called "cut," and congratulated me on my performance. It must have been good—I bent my bayonet. I asked Jim Franciscus how he took the role which had him near-naked most of the time. (Last film, "Marooned," had him again as an astronaut—but, fully-uniformed in space).

"I TALKED to Chuck Heston about it," Jim smiled. "And he told me when he read the first show—and I'm glad he's also in this one—he asked himself only one question about any role. 'Have you got something to play?' The answer was obviously a resounding YES!"

How will this sequel differ from the original? Director Post, who had handled most of the "Peyton Place" shows, pointed to a note he had written on the first page of his script. "This should explain it all," he said.

It read: "This story should intensify the predicament that challenges man's survival on the development of a new species."

So far, the studio hasn't quite figured out how to work out the finale on an uplifting note. But before $5 million is spent on the film, they'll do it. We hope.

And so I changed uniforms, washed my face and returned to the species I know best—a newspaperman.

50 CRUSHED TO DEATH IN RESTAURANT—A state of mourning was declared after the roof of a restaurant in a model village in Spain collapsed, crushing 50 persons to death and injuring 120 others, many of them critically. Nearly 300 persons were eating a late lunch at a fiesta to celebrate the opening of a new convention hall restaurant in the village of Los Angeles de San Rafael 50 miles northwest of Madrid, when the tragedy occurred. Rescue workers are shown combing through the debris. (Radiophoto)

It takes this many men to inspect this many Volkswagens.

There are really only two things that stand between you and a new Volkswagen.
Price $1,933.81
And 1,104 inspectors.
The money is your problem.
The number of inspectors it takes to okay every VW that leaves the Volkswagen factory is ours.
You see, once a man becomes a Full Inspector of our factory (and he'll spend three years doing just that), he becomes a different man.

He then has the power to overrule any and all decisions that relate to the manufacture of the car.
(One "no" from any one of those gentlemen up in the picture and that Volkswagen is not a Volkswagen.)
Every single VW part is inspected at least 3 times. So before the whole car gets from us to you, it goes through 16,000 different inspections in all. (We lose an average of 225 bugs a day that way.)

So if you ever had to wait a little longer than you cared to for a new VW, now you know why.
It's not that we can't make them fast enough.
It's just that we can't make them good enough fast enough.

Meet Charles Adler Jr.— Is He Last of Independent Inventors?

By LEE DELSER
Central Press Association
Correspondent

BALTIMORE, Md. — What ever happened to the independent inventor — geniuses like Thomas A. Edison and Alexander Graham Bell who helped transform ruckie America into the technological giant it is today?

Did they get lost in their own cellars, fade away or just give up the ghost? Maybe. But there is one who still is kicking and inventing.

He is Charles Adler Jr., the fellow who created the world's first traffic-actuated auto signal, the first rotating electric railroad stop sign, and the first high-intensity, anti-collision lights that are a familiar sight on all airplanes.

Adler, now 70 and living in Baltimore, Md., agreed that he's probably the last of the go-it-alone inventors.

"It would be difficult to become an independent inventor these days," he said, "especially in this era of electronics and computers where almost everything is done by researchers and scientists employed by big corporations."

"A SOLO inventor today," he added, "just doesn't have the unlimited technical manufacturing facilities, the unlimited research facilities and the unlimited funds required to compete with the big company researchers."

The silver-haired, hawk-faced ex-pilot rubbed his steel-rimmed spectacles and predicted that someday — soon — east coasters will be able to fly to Rome in an hour via "perpetual motion."

"Engineers, scientists and the public," he said, "have scoffed at the idea of perpetual motion, yet our very existence depends on it. It will play a major role in long-distance airplane travel of the future."

"For instance, a rocket-propelled plane will ascend to orbit, then coast about 6,000 miles per hour until it is over Gibraltar. The pilot will restart the engines, kick the aircraft out of orbit and make his descent to the Rome airport in motion."

"Some of the things Adler was not too lazy to invent include one of the first auto power brakes and a double-flame, false-bulb which is in use all over the world."

Currently the inventor, who vaguely resembles J. Paul Getty, is envisioning an electronic system that will enable cars to travel up to 150 miles an hour in perfect safety aided by automatic spacing gauges operated from a central control.

"I still think early mornings are best for thanks. Now that election excitement is over for awhile, we can think on the good sportsmanship which was shown on the part of the candidates. I heard of no 'mud slinging'. Some who lost could even congratulate their opponent. That shows courtesy."

We are not against those who do not vote for any more than our Concorder, John Tom Taylor, will be against Dodges just because he also sells Chevrolets now.

A crowd enjoyed some good food at the new Smorgasbord place Sunday near Rice Futrell's on the North Highway.

Elmo Bonner on vacation from Michigan and his brother, Max, caught the fish and Gey Lovins tried them Tuesday evening for 25 relatives and a few guests gathered at a cabin on the hillside near the Bonner's Grocery.

Howard Kline's son's family from Michigan so surprised them by coming unexpectedly Tuesday that when the son jokingly walked into the Concord Postoffice and asked for his mail, his mother asked, "What is your name?"

The Auburn Sills' from Stewart County renewed an old time custom by serving a big country dinner to the men baling, raking, and hauling their hay last week.

And true it is that gone are days of such big meals as housewives cooked in the era of big wood stoves in hot kitchens with water carried from wells or cisterns, and never a refrigerator. Those were the days before diets.

an hour."

Adler, who recently was cited for suggesting the newly created Cabinet post of secretary of Transportation, gave the U.S. government what could be the major air safety gadget of all time.

Adler calls it a "collision avoidance" system, a "simple, basic formula on a proximity indicator" that would give advance warning to pilots and prevent mid-air crashes.

SEVERAL major corporations are working on variations of collision avoidance systems, but Washington has not adopted any of them, including Adler's invention. Even so, the Federal Aviation Agency refers to the inventor as "Mr. Anti-Collision."

The anti-collision patent is only one of a number of safety plans he has turned over to the government gratis.

"My standards are so high," he admitted, "I reject everything. I have this idea that I must equal or surpass what I've already done. I'm also very lazy. Inventing isn't any fun. It's a nuisance, although I do get a thrill when I complete something and get a patent."

Some of the things Adler was not too lazy to invent include one of the first auto power brakes and a double-flame, false-bulb which is in use all over the world."

Currently the inventor, who vaguely resembles J. Paul Getty, is envisioning an electronic system that will enable cars to travel up to 150 miles an hour in perfect safety aided by automatic spacing gauges operated from a central control.

Automobiles Spur State Economy

Enough jobs to support a city larger than the Louisville metropolitan area.

That's what Kentucky's motor vehicles mean to the state as indicated in a new statistical report released by Joseph J. Moylan, regional government relations and information representative of the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

The report points out that the manufacture, sale, servicing and commercial use of motor vehicles in the state accounts for $31,000 jobs. Based on a national employment-population ratio, these workers and their families represent a population of 860,600. Detailed information in the report outlines the major role played by highway transportation industries in the state's overall economy. For example, automobile dealers and gasoline service stations account for nearly 24 per cent of all retail trade. Special studies conducted by AMA show that manufacturers of motor vehicles, not including independent suppliers, operate 36 plants or offices in Kentucky. These employ 9,500 workers with an annual payroll of $73 million. Annual taxes paid by these firms to state and local governments exceed $3 million.

Kentucky's importance as an automotive state is highlighted by its production of nearly 80,000 passenger cars in the 1968 model year. About 50,000 trucks are produced in the state each year.

In addition, motor vehicle makers spent more than $38 million for goods and services from 240 different firms in the state.

The state's 618 new car and truck dealers represent an investment of $68 million, employ 10,600 workers and pay $58 million annually in wages and salaries.

About 29,600 residents of the Bluegrass State are stockholders in automotive firms.

Vehicle registrations in the state reached an estimated 1,589,000 in 1968 with the addition of more than 43,000 cars and 13,500 trucks.

Kentucky residents supported their highway transportation system through payment of $128 million in state highway user taxes in 1968. Included are $94 million in gasoline taxes, about $15 million in vehicle registration fees and some $18 million in motor carrier and miscellaneous user charges. The state provides about $85 million to the Federal government in automotive excise taxes.

Trucking continues as a growing business in Kentucky with trucks representing about 19 per cent of registered vehicles and paying some 36 per cent of special state vehicle taxes. The state has more than 181,000 workers involved in the commercial use of trucks. Kentucky's rank as an agricultural state remains high aided by the use on farms of more than 90,000 trucks, about one of every three private trucks registered. Some 5,200 school buses transport Kentucky pupils to and from classes while more than 1,200 other buses are in commercial use.

NOW NATIONAL SHRINE—The birthplace of assassinated President John F. Kennedy at 83 Beals St., Brookline, Mass., is now a national historic site. His mother, Mrs. Joseph Kennedy, presented deed to two-story house to government.

DOWN CONCORD WAY

By Estelle Spiceland
June 11, 1969

Do people still believe that "Early to bed, early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise?"

Some children sit up watching television until past midnight and then sleep until noon the next day. Maybe television has made youth wiser about many things (some better left off), but I wonder if it has not done more harm than good.

There is no better way to start a day than to awaken about dawn and hear birds caroling joyfully from the tree tops and feel the cool breeze wafting in at the windows before the quietude is broken by sounds of traffic.

That is a better time even than at church to say "Father, we thank Thee for the night, and for the pleasant morning lift, for rest and food, and loving care, and all that makes the world so fair."

During my happy days teaching at Buchanan we didn't recite the Pledge to the Flag near so often mornings as we started the day singing. "Help us to do the things we should, to be to others kind and good, in all we do, in work or play, to be more loving every day."

Somewhat I guess I'm different, but I don't see the use of rituals in school or church. Children "pledge allegiance" when I asked what allegiance means, few would know. In church the monotonous ritual has but little meaning to those who read.

"We all join in singing 'Oh how I Love Jesus', but He says, 'If ye love me, keep My commandments'. I still think early mornings are best for thanks.

Now that election excitement is over for awhile, we can think on the good sportsmanship which was shown on the part of the candidates. I heard of no "mud slinging". Some who lost could even congratulate their opponent. That shows courtesy."

We are not against those who do not vote for any more than our Concorder, John Tom Taylor, will be against Dodges just because he also sells Chevrolets now.

Out-Of-State Tourist Like Ky. Parks

FRANKFORT — "We have traveled over much of the United States and find that Kentucky has the nicest and most interesting parks of almost any state." The quote was taken from one of hundreds of suggestion cards sent to the Kentucky State Parks Department the past month and seems to reflect the general attitudes of the responding public toward the Kentucky parks system.

The suggestion cards are placed at every Kentucky state park with a message from Gov. Louie B. Nunn encouraging suggestions as to how to improve the efficiency of the park.

The majority of respondents, in addition to offering suggestions, overwhelmingly praise the state park system. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Earnest, Rushville, Ind., said General Butler State Park near Carrollton, "is a tremendous place to relax." Harold A. Robertson, St. Louis, Mo., told the Parks Department to "keep Kentucky Dam Village State Park the same as it is now."

C. R. Mench, Colorado Springs, Colo., wrote: "We've used four of your parks and enjoyed each one." Commenting on Levi Jackson State Park (near Interstate 75 at London) Reuben C. Chisum, Flint Mich., noted the convenient location for "travelers going to and from the South."

Although the suggestion cards are filled with praise, probably the more interesting items come directly from letters to the Parks Commissioner, Robert E. Gable. Mrs. H. K. Northcutt of Carrollton entertained a bridge club at Gen. Butler State Park and was greatly assisted by Mrs. Verne K. Reenan of the park's staff in coordinating the meeting. She writes: "We are very proud of our park, and personnel of Mrs. Reenan's type adds to its attractiveness."

John M. Hall, merchandising manager of Albers Milling Company, Kansas City, Mo., visited Buckhorn Lake State Park, calling it "one of the most beautiful, picturesque places I have ever seen."

Hall added: "Seldom do I take the time to write anyone concerning places I have visited but in this case I feel it an obligation to write you to compliment you and your department for the wonderful hospitality afforded me by the personnel of the Buckhorn Lodge...."

In my work, I travel extensively throughout the United States and never have I found anyone to be more gracious and helpful than the Buckhorn staff."

Most of the letters to the Parks Department are typed, but a handwritten one received last April 4 by the "Honorable Louie B. Nunn," said:

"Dear Sir: "My Wife and I Want to Compliment you on the excellent Staff at Dupont Lodge, Corbin Kentucky. The food was excellent And Mrs. Williams The House Keeper was such a fine Hostess It was the Cleanest of all the Parks We have had the Pleasure to Visit.

"Yours Truly "Percy Tevis"

Mr. Tevis' letter had no return address and it wasn't elaborately worded or punctuated, for that matter, but it said as much as any of the others.

The people around Levi Jackson had seen the park grow under Lovely and wanted him retained, but when Commissioner Gable politely answered each letter, explaining Lovely had received a pay raise and a promotion by going to one of Kentucky's year-round resorts and that a competent replacement, Rufus M. Yaden, was replacing Lovely, the letters of desecration turned to letters of understanding.

Many people from many parts of the nation visit Kentucky state parks and respond favorably. Almost every visitor will probably agree with Edward Peck of Jeffersonville, Ind., when, after an enjoyable time at Carter Caves State Park, he said: "All Kentuckians can take pride in their park system...surely it could be a model for other states to emulate."

Complimentary letters aren't all the Parks Department receives in the way of mail.

When Mark Lovely, the manager at Levi Jackson State Park was transferred to Carter Caves State Park, a flood of letters and a 200-signature petition came to Commissioner Gable, asking him to transfer Lovely back to Levi Jackson.

Destroy Old Plant Beds

By W. R. Hoover
Area Tobacco Extension Agent

When the burley tobacco transplanting period ends, or plants become too large for use, or all useable plants have been pulled, plow or thoroughly disk and seed to soybeans or peas if location is to be used next year. Three or four pounds of seed should be sufficient for 100 square yard bed. Plow under while crop is still green.

Dark types of tobacco should be grown in beds in new locations annually to avoid possibility of root-rot and some other diseases to which many of the varieties used are not resistant. Old beds of these types of tobacco should be destroyed, however, after use to aid in controlling diseases and insects that affect tobacco crops.

On Mt. Washington Cog Railway Observes Its Centennial

An unusual sight—five one-car trains together on a slope of Mt. Washington. Picture was taken above the timberline.

By SANDO BOLOGNA
Central Press Washington Correspondent
CRAWFORD NOTCH, N.H.—The Mt. Washington Cog Railway, New England's most spectacular tourist transportation means, will be 100 years old July 3.
The world's first mountain-climbing cog railway, it is the only railway of its kind, having three-and-one-half miles of track of which three miles is on trestle.
Thousands of tourists from all parts of the United States and many countries have ascended to the summit of the 6,228-foot peak on one-car trains, powered by small, snubbed-nose engines. From the top of New England's highest mountain, the view extends on clear days to Portland, Maine, 100 miles away.
The leisurely ascent has thrilled U.S. presidents, European dignitaries and ordinary Americans seeking an unusual travel experience.
The average grade is one foot in four, or 25 per cent, with the steepest grade being on Jacob's Ladder, 37.4 per cent.
As the engine of each one-car train huffs and puffs up and down the trestle, the passengers are treated to spectacular panoramas of forests and valleys.
The speed is the same on the descent as on the ascent, because of the cogwheel whose strong teeth mesh with a string of cogs in the middle of the track.
The unique railway was conceived by Sylvester March, a native of New Hampshire, who had made a fortune in the meat-packing business in Chicago. He became lost while climbing Mt. Washington with a friend in 1852 during severe storm conditions. He felt sure that a mountain railroad would be a more pleasant and safer way to travel to the peak.

MARCH discussed his plans with a friend, Herrick Aiken, who had previously thought of the idea of installing a cog railway on the mountainside but who was told by associates that it was impractical and costly.

March was called "a crazy man" by New Hampshire people who heard of his plan. He built an eight-foot-long model track and designed a steam engine model which he displayed to the New Hampshire legislature.
The legislators were also amazed but they did grant him a charter in 1858 for the construction of the cog railway.

GREEN THUMBS BEAUTIFY HOME

Results of the labors of 4-H gardeners in the community are showing in various ways these days. Lush green lawns flanked by neatly trimmed shrubs, colorful flowers, and in many places a flourishing vegetable garden are signs that a 4-H green thumb was there.

The 4-H youths are engaged in horticultural projects that include raising flowers, fruits, and vegetables. Landscaping, too, is an important segment of the program for both home and community areas.

An estimated 175,000 boys and girls from coast-to-coast are enrolled in the national 4-H Horticultural program supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service, and sponsored by Allis-Chalmers for the 24th straight year. Adults experienced in gardening usually serve as volunteer leaders for horticultural clubs.

Allis-Chalmers annually provides incentive awards for county, state and national winners. To be awarded this year will be eight national scholarships of $600 each; an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago for the top state winner, and four honor medals per county.

Soil improvement, seedtesting for germination, plant propagation and pruning techniques are some of the scientific aspects of the 4-H projects. For youths living in rural areas, the roadside vegetable and flower stand is a popular and profitable venture.

Successful careers have materialized for former 4-H'ers because of their gardening experience. Some of the 1968 national award recipients already are applying their $600 scholarships toward a degree in agronomy or horticultural sciences.

The need is great for skilled horticulturists, including landscape architects, due to part in expanding land beautification and public recreational facilities. Career opportunities are also promising in research, floristry, the nursery business and in sales.

The 4-H Horticultural program is open to any boy or girl between 9 and 19 years old. More information can be obtained from the local County Extension Office.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New Orleans has become the third most important U. S. port in the import-export trade between this country and Japan, according to the U. S. - Japan Trade Council.

New Orleans replaced Los Angeles in the third spot, behind New York and San Francisco.

COLORFUL FIRST LADY—The new first lady of France, Mrs. Claude Pompidou, is expected to become the most colorful first lady since Marie Antoinette, not because of her behavior, but because of the company she and her husband, President Georges Pompidou, keep in private life. They prefer to surround themselves with artists and writers in their elegant St. Louis apartment rather than politicians.

Diet Aid Helps Poor Families

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A pilot nutrition education effort is taking the University of California's Agriculture Extension program deep into poverty areas in both city and country.

The program, aided by federal funds, is designed to reach "hard to reach" poor families to help improve the nutritional quality and adequacy of individual and family diets within the economic means of the family.

The university has employed

360 women from disadvantaged areas as parttime aides. They have learned basic nutrition and teaching methods and are already teaching others in their own neighborhoods.

"In the first month of the program, more than 6,000 California families were reached," says Dr. Gaylord P. Whitlock, project director.

Heartbreak Cases

MANILA (UPI) — There are more than one million retarded children in the Philippines (population: 35 million), according to organizers of the special Child Study Center in Manila.

Advance Helps Save Babies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Of the 350,000 babies born in California each year, at least 3,500 of them are threatened with a blood disorder known as Rh disease.

Now for the first time it is often possible to prevent this disease, reports the California Medical Association.

The disease causes abnormal destruction of red blood cells in the infant, the result of an incompatibility between the mother's Rh blood type and that of the baby.

The disease normally occurs only in the second pregnancy of an Rh negative woman. The preventive treatment now available is a new anti-Rh gamma globulin given to the woman within 72 hours after her first baby.

A classified ad in Friday's Salt Lake Tribune advised the reader that "The Salt Lake County Sheriff's Posse is looking for a queen and two attendants to reign at the 15th annual RCA - approved Rodden."

HONOLULU UPI — Jack Craig hopes the Highway Department won't wait too long to widen the curve that leads to a bridge at the edge of his property. In recent months, 29 motorists have missed the turn and wound up on Craig's front lawn.

"It's better since we moved the garage," Craig said Friday. "They smashed it 15 times."

In Time of Emergency

Fallout Shelter Built Into Home Seen As Practical Way to Survive Attack

The public fallout shelter system which has been developed in the United States would protect tens of millions of Americans from fallout resulting from a nuclear attack. However, few public shelters exist in locations such as suburban and rural areas that lack large, heavy structures. In places with inadequate or non-existent public shelters, a home fallout shelter could be a life saver.

The basements of some homes are usable as family fallout shelters as they now stand without any major changes, especially if the house has two or more stories, and its basement is below ground level.

Most home basements, however, would need some improvements in order to adequately shield their occupants from the radiation given off by fallout particles. Usually, householders can make these improvements themselves with moderate effort and at low cost. Millions of homes have been surveyed for the U.S. Office of Civil Defense by the U.S. Census Bureau, and these householders have been given information on the fallout protection their present basements would provide, and how to increase this protection by making specific improvements.

Shielding Material Is Required

In setting up any home fallout shelter, the basic aim is to place enough "shielding material" between the people in the shelter and the fallout particles outside the home.

Shielding material is any substance that would absorb and deflect the invisible rays given off by fallout particles outside the house, and thus reduce the amount of radiation reaching the occupants of the shelter. The thicker or denser the shielding material is, the more it would protect the shelter occupants.

Some radiation protection is provided by the existing, standard walls and ceiling of a basement. But if they are not thick or dense enough, other shielding material has to be added.

Concrete, bricks, earth and sand are some of the materials that are dense or heavy enough to provide fallout protection. For comparative purposes, 4 inches of concrete would provide the same shielding density as:

- 5 to 6 inches of bricks
- 6 inches of sand or gravel
- 7 inches of earth
- 8 inches of hollow concrete blocks (6 inches if filled with sand)
- 10 inches of water
- 14 inches of books or magazines
- 18 inches of wood

Some of the materials listed above may be handled more easily if they are packed into bags, cartons, boxes or other containers already placed where the additional shielding is desired.

A home shelter can be either a permanent basement shelter, a preplanned basement shelter, or a permanent outside shelter. Plans for each type may be obtained without charge by writing to Civil Defense, Army Publications Center, 2800 Eastern Blvd., Baltimore, Md. 21220. In writing for either type of basement shelter, mention whether Plan A, B, C, D, or E is wanted.

The following 3 shelters are probably the best type to build in homes with a full basement or one corner below ground level. The required shielding material would cost about $100 to $200. Persons with basic carpentry or masonry skills could probably do the work themselves. Shelters of this type should always be built in the "best" corner of a basement—the corner which is most below ground level. CEILING MODIFICATION (Plan A) calls for increasing the overhead shielding against "downward" radiation by screwing plywood sheets securely to the bottom of the ceiling joists, then filling the spaces between the joists with bricks or concrete blocks. An extra ceiling beam and a screw-jack column may be needed to support the extra weight.

If 12 inches or more of the basement wall is above ground level, this plan should not be used unless two interior partitions are added to form a shelter area and protect the shelter occupants against radiation coming from the side.

ALTERNATE CEILING MODIFICATION (Plan B) is similar to Plan A, except that new extra joists are fitted into part of the basement ceiling (over that section of the basement which will be used as a shelter). The new joists will help support the added weight of the overhead shielding material, and the extra ceiling beam and screw-jack column will not be needed.

CONCRETE BLOCK OR BRICK SHELTER (Plan C) is a plan to build, out of concrete blocks or bricks, a separate 5 x 11-foot shelter in the "best corner" of a basement. It requires construction of only two walls and a ceiling for the shelter, since the regular basement walls will serve as the other two walls of the shelter. Built low, this can serve as a "sit-down" shelter, or by making the walls higher, a shelter can accommodate people standing erect. The shelter ceiling, however, should not be higher than the outside ground level.

If a home has a basement but no permanent-type basement shelter is not desired, the next best thing would be to arrange to assemble a "pre-planned" home shelter. This simply means gathering together, in advance, the shielding material needed to make a basement (or one part of it) more resistant to fallout radiation. This material could be stored in or around the home, ready for use whenever it is decided to set up a shelter.

PREPLANNED SNACK BAR SHELTER (Plan D) is a snack bar built of bricks or "use all available, practical and reasonable methods to prevent and control air pollution." —Guarantee a public hearing to an applicant before denial of a permit. Conversely, it would guarantee any objector a public hearing before issuance of a permit.

The 3-year-old commission has not yet adopted emission limits and the permit regulation is designed to provide some control from now until such standards take effect.

The two emission-limit regulations returned to committee Tuesday would allow existing sources 12 months to comply, and there is some sentiment for extending the compliance period to 18 months.

The emission limit regulations Nos. 7 and 8, previously the subject of lengthy study and debate by the particulates committee headed by industry representative John Kane, were turned over to a special, three-member committee.

Commission chairman Dr. Samuel Lord, Mrs. Richard Swiger and Orville W. Stewart are to study the proposals with the commission's staff and report back at the July 22 meeting.

Quick 'n' Easy

Now is the season for hot fresh tomato cheese sandwiches. Lightly toast and butter 4 slices of rye bread. Arrange on toast 1/4 pound of boiled ham and 3 medium-sized tomatoes, sliced. Mix together 1 cup of evaporated milk, 1/4 cup of grated cheddar cheese, 1/4 teaspoon of mustard and 1/4 teaspoon of salt in top of double boiler. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until cheese melts. Serve cheese sauce over sandwiches. Makes 4 servings.

Johnnie S. Ahart Rites Held Today

Funeral services for Johnnie S. Ahart, age 77, of 721 Nash Drive, Murray, were held today at two p. m. at the chapel of the J. H. Churchill Funeral Home with Dr. H. C. Chiles officiating.

Active pallbearers were Henry Dawson, Roscoe Calhoun, Bartley Taylor, Walter (Monk) Stallons, Edison Ahart, and Gene E. Moore. The Clayborne Jones Sunday School of the First Baptist Church served as an honorary group. Gus Robertson, Jr., sang and Mrs. Richard Farrell was the organist.

Burial was in the Murray Cemetery with the arrangements by the J. H. Churchill Funeral Home.

Mr. Ahart died suddenly on Monday. His wife, Stella, died March 26 of this year. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. James M. (Elaine) Brown and Mrs. Lloyd (Oneda) Boyd; two granddaughters, Misses Barbara L. Brown and Linda Gail Boyd; two sisters, Mrs. Donnie Cochran and Mrs. Peachie Taylor.

of the Viet Cong, still stands despite the formation last week by the Viet Cong of a provisional revolutionary government.

"But they are the ones who are refusing to talk and it takes two to negotiate," he said.

The official complained of news reports he said tended to dwell on minor differences between Saigon and Washington.

"But these very minor differences fade into insignificance when compared to the monstrous attitude of the other side, which is refusing to negotiate seriously," he said.

"The North Vietnamese Communist party has been trying for almost 20 years to get rid of the nationalists in Vietnam," the official added. "Since 1960, they have been waging a military campaign to eliminate their nationalists."

"In effect, they are now asking the Americans to do it for them," he said, referring to Communist demands that the United States withdraw its support from the South Vietnamese government. "It is not going to work."

Allied sources said Rod China's endorsement of the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government strengthened their conviction Peking does not want a negotiated peace in Vietnam. The sources noted that in their congratulatory cables to the head of the self-styled government, Chinese leaders hailed the Viet Cong "popular war" against the United States in South Vietnam but made no mention of the Paris talks.

Marry Early

MANILA (UPI) — Filipinos generally marry at an early age, according to marriage trends gathered by the Bureau of Census and Statistics. Between the ages of 15 and 24, more than seven out of 10 females and more than five out of 10 males get married.

May Rainfall In Valley Is 3.3 Inches

May rainfall averaged 3.3 inches across the Tennessee Valley, less than the normal 4.12 inches for the month, TVA reports. Rains were about normal in the western half of the Valley but only two-thirds of the normal average in the eastern half, above Chattanooga.

The highest May rainfall total reported to TVA was 8.66 inches at all places—Rainsville in northeast Alabama. Rainsville recorded 7 inches of rain over the weekend of May 16-20. The lowest was only 1.08 inches at TVA's gage on top of the Evans Building in downtown Knoxville, Tennessee. However, the drought

For Tourist Protection

MANILA (UPI) — Creation of a special tourist police force in the Philippines has been proposed by Rene A. Albano, president of the Associated Hotels of the Philippines. Albano said reports of tourists being mugged, robbed and otherwise molested have scared away many potential visitors to the country. He is listed as in serious condition at the Veterans' Administration Hospital in Memphis, but is progressing satisfactorily and showing signs of improvement, according to hospital officials.
